

Daily Standup

Daily Standup

Daily standup is a short (10-15 min, everyone should be able to comfortably stand for the whole time) conversation where everyone discusses their progress and can troubleshoot issues as a group. Each person will talk about:

- What have I done since the last standup
- What do I plan to do next
- What impediments do I have

Working in parallel while mastering skills is expected.

Eventually may be able to divide up work

Every class have a sync up to learn from what others have figured out/gotten done

Daily Standup

- Many teams do daily standups, so getting in the routine will be useful in future jobs
- As the projects in the class become more complex standups will be important for monitoring team progress, checking interdependencies, and coordinating getting tasks done
- Standup is not a substitute for regular conversation about work and issues that come up. It is just to make sure no issue goes unaddressed for more than 24 hours.
- Aim to do standup at the beginning of project work every day during class
